Course Description

The scientific study of human society, including ways in which groups, social institutions, and individuals affect each other. Causes of social stability and social change are explored through the application of various theoretical perspectives, key concepts, and related research methods of sociology. Analysis of social issues in their institutional context may include topics such as social stratification, gender, race/ethnicity, and deviance.

Division Information:

Social & Behavioral Sciences Division

Division Dean: Michael Makowsky 153 MHAB – 432.685.6828

Department Chair: Dr. Jay Schwarz 172 MHAB – 432.685.6826

Division Secretary: Angelina Dolapchieva 174 MHAB – 432.685.6830

Student Learning Outcomes and Core Competencies:

Upon successful completion of this course, the student will:

- Compare and contrast the basic theoretical perspectives of sociology.

- Identify the various methodological approaches to the collection and analysis of data in sociology
- Describe key concepts in sociology
- Describe the empirical findings of various subfields of sociology

Inclusion of Core Curriculum Objectives: These Core Curriculum Courses fulfill three hours of the Social and Behavioral Science requirement in the Midland College Core Curriculum. The Core Curriculum is a set of courses that provide students with a foundation of knowledge, skills and educational experiences that are essential for all learning. Social and Behavioral Sciences courses involve the exploration of behavior and interactions among individuals, groups, institutions, and events, examining their impact on the individual, society, and culture. As part of the core, this course addresses the following four objectives:

Critical Thinking skills: Sociological concepts and theories are presented, compared, analyzed, and evaluated. This is accomplished through the formal or informal evaluation of class discussion, student projects, written assignments and exams.

Communication skills: Students in all sections are required to successfully participate in one or more of the following at the discretion of the instructor:

- Written papers
- Essay questions on exams
- Group projects
- Class presentations
- Class discussions
- Video presentations
- Interpretation of graphs, tables, models, and diagrams.

Students are evaluated on their performance on these activities.

Empirical & Quantitative skills: Research design and data analysis is the topic of an entire chapter of the textbook. This topic is discussed in class and appears on tests for the course. In addition, research on sociological topics is presented throughout the course.

Social Responsibility: This course includes social psychological concepts such as conformity, altruism, obedience, bystander effect, and social roles. Intercultural differences in human behaviors are also presented. These concepts are included in assignments and student knowledge of them is evaluated in exams. Students will observe, research, or participate in a voluntary organization to gain a better understanding of social responsibility.

Student Contributions

Will be posted by the instructor in individual course syllabi. Students should contact their instructor if they have any questions.

Class Policies

Academic Integrity: We commit ourselves to act with academic integrity this term – to be ethical in what we say and write, and to offer credit to others for thinking of ideas before us. I want to share with you how we define plagiarism and examples of what it looks like. Plagiarism is defined as the appropriation, buying, receiving as a gift, or obtaining by any means another's work and the unacknowledged submission or incorporation of it in one's own written work offered for credit. A student commits plagiarism if s/he:

1. fails to acknowledge the sources of any information in a paper which is not either common knowledge or personal knowledge. A student can acknowledge a source through in-text citations, attribution lines, footnotes, or other forms of documentation approved by the instructor. (Common knowledge is the basic information within a field or discipline, as well as most historical dates and facts, and many ordinary observations.)
2. fails to acknowledge direct quotation either by using quotation marks or (for longer passages) indentation. Without the quotation marks or indentation, passages copied directly from a source might be considered plagiarized even if it is followed by an in-text citation or a footnote. The citation or footnote acknowledges that there is a source, but it does not indicate that the writer has borrowed someone else's exact words. If a writer uses the language of a source, word-for word, he/she must use quotation marks or block indentation.
3. merely paraphrases the original words of the source. Some students think they can avoid a charge of plagiarism by changing a few words in each sentence they copy or by rearranging the shape of phrases or the order of sentences in a paragraph. This is not true. When taking notes students must be careful to put ideas in their own words or to use direct quotations when relying on phrases directly borrowed from a source.
4. borrowes the ideas, examples, or structure of the source without acknowledging it. A student can be guilty of plagiarism if s/he systematically borrows the ideas and organization of a source even if the language of the piece is on a major news event by using exactly the same ideas in the same order as they appear in an article in any popular news magazine.
5. takes, buys, or receives a paper written by someone else and presents it as the student's own.
6. uses one paper for two different courses, or re-uses a paper previously submitted for credit, without the prior approval of the instructor or instructors.
